Storm Noa to bring strong winds causing some disruption on Wednesday.

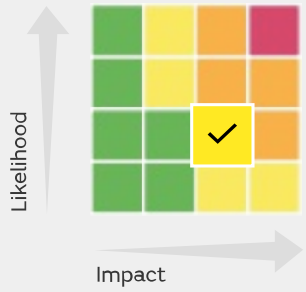
What to expect

- Road, rail, air and ferry services may be affected, with longer journey times and cancellations possible, together with possible closure of bridges
- Some damage to buildings is possible, with some branches blown off trees, and perhaps a few fallen trees
- Power cuts may occur, with the potential to affect other services, such as mobile phone coverage
- Injuries could occur from large waves or flying debris

Further details

West or northwest winds in association with Storm Noa, named by Meteo France, will continue to increase during Wednesday morning, peaking through the middle of the day, when 50 to 60 mph gusts are expected. Gusts of 70 to 75 mph are possible along parts of the north coast of Devon and Cornwall, as well as exposed headlands elsewhere.

Outbreaks of heavy rain or showers will accompany the strong winds.



Low likelihood of medium impacts
